

Legend of Us.

I sincerely doubt that our world and modern society will ever face an apocalypse where all we have made is left in ruins, and nothing is left of this great age but legend and relics. But, if such an event were to occur, I would have it said of us that we build towers of Glass that scraped the heavens, and that our cities burned with a Thousand Lights, enough to block out the stars.

-Nanette Ambrose